News from the President....

CCL has a primary goal to facilitate communication by maintaining the listserv, publishing the Outlook newsletter, and sponsoring workshops and annual meetings. Given the size of our state and the CCC system, I am personally delighted with the level of active participation and communication that librarians enter into with respect to this goal. I want to go a step further this month and encourage another level of participation:

1. Please volunteer to be an EAR member from the East Central, Southwest Bay, or the Northeast regions.
2. Please volunteer to run for the CCL representative position on the Executive Board from the Northeast, Northwest, East Central, Desert, West Central, and Southcoast.
3. Please volunteer to run for the Presidency of CCL

CCL cannot continue to serve the membership without people stepping up and working within the organization. I have loved being the president and before that I was on EAR and the Exec Board. The two Vice Presidents for Instruction that I have worked for have been very supportive of my statewide activities. Sometimes someone has to step up and speak for CCL and for all Community College Libraries and I hope every one of you can see yourselves taking the skills you use on your campus to represent your library and transferring those same skills to representing all our sister campuses at the state level. There will be more information here in the Outlook, on the Web page and in the listservs. Think about it.

If you are reading this letter, I hope you are a regular reader of the Outlook. The November issue of the CCL Outlook was the last issue to benefit from the superior editing skills of Susan Walsh, Director of Learning Resources at Merced College. Susan began editing the Outlook in September 2000 and worked tirelessly over the past five and a half years to collect and publish the news and items of interest to California Community College Librarians. I am particularly fond of her habit of listing the latest books being read personally by folks who had gathered for a meeting. The discussion about books we enjoyed reading was a welcome diversion from worrying about funding and the lists

Mona Martin, Dean of Learning Resources at Santa Monica, is our new editor (bless you Mona) and I hope that all of our membership will continue to think of the Outlook as place to share news from the libraries. Please keep sending Mona material for us all to read.

The Chancellor's office is sponsoring a Tech III planning retreat in May and before that time I hope to have a dialog on the listserv with everyone about what our priorities are in libraries.

Of Interest....

Pasadena City College Library is in the 20th year of their "Artist in Residence" program. The selected artist exhibits his/her work in the library and at the end of the exhibit donates one piece to the College to be on permanent display in the library. A nice way to acquire an art collection!

Music to study by...Columbia College has a monthly "Second Friday Musical Interludes in the Library" program. Larry Steuben arranges to have musicians perform at noon in the library breezeway.

The Columbia College Board of Trustees has endorsed the creation of a $750,000 Library endowment. This is the first fund-raising effort at Columbia for a specific department.

Santa Monica College Library is now in its second year of providing best sellers to their students. The $ 4,000 annual cost of the McNaughton collection is paid for by the Associated Students.

Dr. Ramchandran Sethuraman is the new Department Chair at Long Beach City College. Welcome, Ramchandran!

Southwestern College has begun a pilot program of renting textbooks to students. Let's watch this experiment!

Taft College Library has moved into another temporary location (their former auto shop) while they wait for construction on their library/lrc building to be completed. Although it might sound unusual, Mimi Collins reports that their new home is working out well.

Vista College will be changing its name to Berkeley City College in June 2006.

Ed Tennen has retired from Morepark College (but continues to work part-time). Faten Habib is the new Department Chair. Welcome, Faten!

Google has begun a newsletter for librarians and the first issue is devoted to answering the most asked question: How does Google collect and rank results?

GET READY TO VOTE! NOTICE OF CCL SPRING ELECTIONS

What about you? Why not you? Are you interested and ready to serve on the CCL Board or as President? In April 2006, elections will be held for all of CCL's elective positions.

What makes CCL continue to work well and accomplish great things for the CCC libraries is that active, dedicated and thoughtful chief librarians keep stepping forward to lead and maintain the organization. Without CCL ... well, it wouldn't be pretty, folks.

Take a look at the list of offices shown below. In many cases, the incumbent is termed out and cannot run for another term. And it's always o.k. to have multiple candidates for an office.

PRESIDENT (2-year term)

- * The current President, Johanna Bowen, cannot run again.

REGIONAL REPRESENTATIVES (2-year terms)

- * Southwest Bay – current rep, Loritta Ford (will run for 2nd term)
- * San Francisco / East Bay – current rep, Jim Matthews (will run for 2nd term)
- * Northeast – vacant
- * Northwest – current rep, Will Baty, cannot run again
- * East Central – current rep, Evia Moore, cannot run again
- * Desert – current rep, Dennis Vanderwerff, cannot run again

- * Los Angeles – current rep, Mary Ann Laun (will run for 2nd term)
- * San Diego / Imperial – current rep, Mary Hart (will run for 2nd term)
- * Southcoast – current rep, Cheryl Stewart, cannot run again

Think about it. The job duties for these jobs are included in this issue of the Outlook. Call your current rep, or CCL President Johanna Bowen (831- 479-6536), or CCL Executive Director Gregg Atkins (707-678-1805) to talk about it and find out more.

What to think about the System Strategic Plan? How did libraries fare? What's next?

Well, good news: the BOG-approved plan (www.ccc-systemstrategicplan.org) incorporates an ACRL-like description of information literacy (B.1 Basic Skills, p. 28) and enshrines it as a critical Basic Skill that every incoming student should have or master. (And this wasn't in the previous drafts.)

More good news: the plan still identifies librarians as someone with whom students must have direct interaction and contact to insure effective learning and academic progress (B.5 Teaching & Learning Effectiveness, p. 38).

Probably good news: the plan still declares that teaching and learning effectiveness is impeded by the need for expanded instructional support services. What we do is clearly part of instructional support services, so this serves as a strong reference point for libraries.

Bad news: the as-adopted plan does not include our hoped-for statement that teaching and learning effectiveness is impeded by inadequate learning resources, instructional technology and support. Despite several last-minute attempts to preserve this line (and even make it stronger with the addition of the word "library"), this language was completely removed.

The CCL Board has taken a careful look at the Plan and at this point feels that the approved version, while not as specific as it should have been, still serves as a vehicle for advancing library issues and needs:

- the information competency section is a very powerful link to the work of California Community College libraries and librarians
- the inclusion of librarians in the section covering Teaching & Learning Effectiveness is another construct that puts libraries and librarians within the scope of the Plan
- the need for "expanded instructional support services" can and will be defined by us to include library collections, programs and services.

It's not clear how the Plan starts to be used as a vehicle for change and advancement for the System. CCL will be paying careful attention to that. Each college library should begin to assess how to use the Plan effectively at the local level, and especially to help insure that the accepted definition of instructional support services includes libraries.

Gregg Atkins, CCL Executive Director

Student Fee Increases and Overall Budget Uncertainty Triggered Enrollment Decline

SACRAMENTO – Student fee increases and uncertain budgets triggered a decline in enrollment of over 300,000 students during the last two years, according to a recently released report that attributes the changes to ongoing budget crises and a 136 percent increase in student fees implemented in the California Community Colleges system.

According to “Addendum: Impacts of Student Fee Increase and Budget Changes on Enrollment in the California Community Colleges,” a report mandated by the Legislature, student enrollments dramatically declined when fees were increased from $11 to $26 per unit during academic years 2003-04 and 2004-05.

“Given the relationship between fees and participation rates, the increase from $11 to $18 and subsequently to $26 per unit in Fall 2004 had a dampening effect on students entering our system -- even in the year when the system budget was restored and more course sections were offered,” explained Chancellor Marshall (Mark) Drummond.

The report, authored by Patrick C. Perry, Vice Chancellor of Technology, Research, and Information Systems, reveals the following:

- The community college system has now lost 314,000 students due to the combined effects of fee increases (in Fall 2003 and again in Fall 2004) and system budget volatility.
- Disproportionately large losses have occurred in older students age 25 and older, and in first-time and returning student populations.
- Although the total student population in the system declined, there was little disproportionate effect on students by ethnicity or gender.
- There was little difference in impact on students from lower income geographic areas, which points to the effectiveness of the system’s statewide financial aid campaign (“I Can Afford College” www.icanaffordcollege.com).
- Even though the latest fee increase, which was enacted in Fall 2004, was accompanied by a budget augmentation to the system, that enabled colleges to offer some 6,000 new course sections, the system headcount continued to decline by 1.33 percent in 2004-05.

News from Sarah Raley...

Consortium Survey

Last fall, a survey was conducted by the consortium. We received ninety responses from our college librarians. Most of the libraries use the consortium web site monthly or semi-annually and 82 libraries read the CCL-EAR committee reviews often or occasionally. Sixty-eight of the responding libraries subscribe to 5 to 14 databases through the consortium. Many libraries provided us with names of databases they buy outside the consortium that might be an appropriate addition to our offers. Several libraries mentioned they'd like to see more electronic books offered.

Librarians were asked what areas of their curriculum needed additional databases to support classes. The top area noted was Science with Vocation Ed/Tech as a close second. Eighty-seven of the librarians responding offer remote access to their databases. Slightly less than half of those (41) are doing so utilizing a username and password.

If you'd like a full copy of the survey results, please email Sarah Raley @ sarah-ralley@cclleague.org

Spring Orders

The Master Renewal Forms for spring orders through the Consortium will be sent to each library the end of February. Watch for yours!
